Sample answer:

Yes, it works very well. I prefer to make a weekly master list and a daily list. Start each week by making a master list of everything that I need to accomplish for the week. Then each day create a daily list. Write down everything that I have to do that day on my list include meetings, tasks, appointments... everything that I can think of. This will help me get the satisfaction of crossing items off my to-do list once a task is accomplished.

2. What do you plan to change next year?

Sample Answer:

Well I am planning to change my living habit. I always stay up late at night in spite of knowing it's not good for my sleep and health at all. I cannot help spending an hour browsing my Wechat moments before I go to sleep every night. I don't remember when I formed this habit, what is certain is that this pernicious habit has a bad influence on my sleep. That's why I decide to make a change about it.

3. Are there any changes in your hometown?

Sample Answer:

My hometown experienced an enormous change during the past twenty years. It is one of the biggest and most bustling cities located in the east of China. In the past, there are old residential buildings and production plants everywhere, but now they have been renovated or being replaced by fancy shopping malls or new communities. The streets are widened and more urban subways are built to shorten the commuting time. People nowadays have more entertainment than before, for example they can do sports, go to the theatre or hang out in pubs at night. In these days, young people are more willing to socialize and embrace novelties.

4. Do you discuss a program with your friends?

Sample Answer:

I do, especially those programs that release only one episode a week. For these programs, the audience is left wondering what will happen next, and this is what I discuss with my friends. We also talk about which characters we like best, and we gossip about the actors.

5. What is your favorite color of clothes?

Sample Answer:

I prefer clothes in soft colors such as pink and beige. These mute colors suit me well as they match my complexion and temperament. I seldom try bold colors because I don't want to look aggressive and sharp. Furthermore, soft colored clothes are easier to go with other clothing or accessories. That is to say I can match them with handbags or skirts effortlessly. While, the problem is that light colored clothes are more easily to get dirty, which means I have to be careful when I am wearing in white or any cream colored dresses.

6. What sports did you do when you were a kid?

Sample Answer:

When I was a kid, I was super busy with sports. I loved going outdoors and being active, so I signed up for a ton of different sports in elementary school. I played soccer and basketball on my school's sports teams, and these usually took up my free time during autumn and spring. During winter, I swam on a local swimming team. During summer, I signed up for sailing camp and learned how to sail sailboats. I also did swimming for fun during the summer. I was very fit when I was a kid because of all these sports that I did.

7. What is your favorite sport? Why?

Sample answer:

My favorite sport is soccer. I started playing soccer on my elementary school's soccer team when I was three, and I've been playing soccer ever since. I love the feeling of running on the wide-open soccer field, breathing in the fresh air under a bright sun. Moreover, I love soccer because of the collaboration needed between teammates, and the way that everything was a team effort. I enjoy the feeling of being on a team and struggling together no matter rain or shine to reach a common goal. And finally, that feeling of scoring a goal and having your teammates cheer you on is wonderfully delightful.

8. What do you usually do on weekends?

Sample answer:

I usually spend my weekends with my family. We sometimes cook, ride bicycles, and go on picnics and hikes together. Once in a while, we might invite friends for a barbecue party. My weekends are mainly meant for relaxing and having fun, so sometimes when I'm not spending time with my family, I go to see art exhibitions and watch movies with my friends from school.

9. What is the difference between a picnic and cooking at home?

Sample answer:

Compared to cooking at home, individuals can enjoy beautiful scenes and fresh air when they have tasty food in a picnic. While people usually cook meals in the kitchen at home, it is impossible for them to have a barbecue at an open space as they do in the picnic. Such experiences really make certain people prefer to have picnics some time.

10. Do you like to eat out in restaurants or cook at home?

Sample answer:

I prefer cooking at home to eating out in restaurants. Because I think it's much healthier. I can keep everything under control, especially about the dose of relishes I use. If I eat outside, the cooks may overuse some seasonings or additives to flavor food. Though the food tastes good, it will do harm to my health if I eat out from time to time.

Part 2

1. Describe a time when your computer had a problem

You should say:

What the problem was

When it happened

What you did for the problem

And explain how you felt about it

Sample answer:

One of my old laptops had a problem with its graphics card and its hard disk. Whenever I opened any software that needed a lot of power from the graphics card, my computer would make some funny noises and shut down and restart itself. Due to this, I had trouble using software such as Adobe Photoshop and Premiere Pro, so I had to use my older computer for these functions.

One day last week, I wanted to make some small edits to a photograph and I couldn't be bothered to open my older computer, so I tried to open Photoshop on my laptop. I made sure to close all the other applications so that the graphics card wouldn't be heavily burdened. However, to no avail, the moment the Photoshop application launched, my computer's screen went black and restarted. As soon as it successfully restarted, it automatically tried to open the Photoshop application, which made it restart again. This went on for a couple of times while I sat there clueless, until I thought of pressing down the power button for a forced shutdown of my computer. When I tried to turn on the computer, there were weird clicking noises coming from inside of my laptop, and there was a dark screen with a white sign in the middle. I was beginning to worry that something bad had happened, so I turned on my other computer and started searching online for what to do. Unfortunately, I found that this particular sign only appeared when the computer couldn't find a hard drive to reboot its system; in other words, not only was there something wrong with the graphics card, the hard drive was broken as well. The only solution would be to wipe the computer and reinstall the system, which meant that all my files were gone.

Upon reading this, I was exasperated and sad for my malfunctioning computer and all the files that I had lost. I was also upset at myself for not making a backup of my files.

2. Describe a person who you think is very open

You should say

Who this person is

How you knew this person

Why you think this person is very open

And explain how you feel about this person

Sample answer:

Well, speaking of the open person that I think, it must be my college roommate Tracy. We had a good relationship in college and we shared a strong bond and affection. I want to thank this topic for giving me a chance to reminisce about my college days.

I like Tracy for her adorable behaviour on top of her smartness and loving nature. She is the person I can share everything with and that's the reason that I trust her so much. She is perky, charismatic, optimistic and the ray of sunshine in my college time.

Possibly she is the first person that can give me some rational thoughts at any time. I can still remember we failed in a group speech contest, all the members of the group were crestfallen and get ready to go back to the dormitory for a rest. But, Tracy gathered us and lead us to analyze the reasons for failure and boost our morale. Finally, we ended up with a nice dinner and it seemed we are the winners. At that very moment, I realised how open minded she was and cares for what is the most important in our life.

3. Describe a time when you ate something for the first time

You should say:

What you ate

When you ate it

Where you were

And explain how you felt about it

Sample answer:

I still remember the first time I tried licorice.

A few years ago, I bought a bag of candy at the airport, not knowing there was licorice inside. On the outside of the candy bag, there were colorful designs of candy drops, and since I loved eating gummy candy, I thought that that was what I was buying. When I got home and opened the bag, an overwhelming smell came to me. It was like the sickly-sweet smell of cough drops and medicine. Maybe the candy will taste better than it smelled, I thought, but I was terribly wrong. The taste of the candies was sweet and sour and bitter all at the same time, with a strong and weird taste of herbs. It was almost like the traditional Chinese medicine brewed out of roots and herbs my grandma forced me to drink when I was little. I tried to swallow the candy, but the taste was so bad and unexpected that I gagged.

I grabbed the candy bag and saw that it said licorice on it, but I didn't know what it meant so I searched online, and I found that licorice was a candy made out of the juice of the licorice root, a strong-smelling spice. I'm not a picky eater, but I couldn't believe that there were people who liked the taste of licorice. I hated it. I later brought the bag of candy to school, and sure enough, nobody seemed to like the taste. That was the first and last time that I will probably ever eat licorice in my life.

4. Describe a kind of bag you want to own

You should say:

What kind of bag it is

Where you want to buy it

How much it will cost you

And explain why you want to buy this kind of bag.

Sample answer:

I would like to have a new JanSport backpack. It's a big backpack with adjustable straps and four compartments. I've been using my old backpack for all of middle school and high school, and it's pretty worn out, so I've decided that I should get a new one.

The reason why I want to buy it from the brand JanSport is that the bags are durable and have lifetime warranties. At college, I'll be using my backpack every single day to carry my laptop and heavy textbooks around campus, so I want to make sure that my bag is of good quality. What's more, I really like the brand's backpack designs; the colors and style are all to my liking.

I'm not sure of the exact price, but I think that the price of the style of backpacks that I have in mind is around 400 yuan. I know that this price is a bit more expensive than normal, but I think it's worth it for the quality and the warranty. Preferably, I would like to buy it in the United States because there's a greater variety of styles to choose from, and it's slightly cheaper without customs tax, but if my current backpack wears down before then, I'll probably buy them online in China, either on Taobao or Amazon.

5. Describe a time you needed to use your imagination

You should say:

What the situation was

Why you needed to use imagination

What the difficulties were

And explain how you felt about it.

Sample answer:

There was a time in middle school physics class where we needed to use our imagination. We were covering a unit on outer space, and we had to make a model of various concepts that we learned, including planets in the solar system, black holes, etc. Because we were in middle school, we didn't learn much about the exact science and theories behind the planets, but rather, we learned about their descriptions and what they were like. Based on that, we had to make hand-made models. This was where I used my imagination to invent something that could represent celestial bodies that no one has ever seen with their naked eye before. The difficult part was that we also had to make the object recognizable, in other words, the size and scale of the various planets had to be relatively accurate, and had to resemble the planet in some way. We had to be creative under these limitations, and this was a nice challenge.

Overall, I really enjoyed making the project. There was no wrong answer. What was also fun was seeing other classmates' interpretations of the same object, for example, the sun could be a yellow paper ball in the hands of one student, yet in another, it could be a spiky red thing with wooden sticks representing sun rays sticking out of it. Looking back, I think that projects such as these that combined science with art and design were the good memories that really stood out from my time in school and really helped with my understanding of different subjects.

6. Describe an occasion when you waited for something or someone for a long time

You should say:

Who or what you waited for
Where you waited
Why you waited
And explain how you felt while you were waiting

Sample answer:

My little brother is a huge procrastinator, so I often have to wait for him whenever we do something together. There was one time when I had to wait for him for so long that I got very mad at him.

We were planning on seeing the newest Avengers movie together, and I had already bought the tickets for the movie at 2 o'clock. The movie theater was near our house, so we planned to leave at least twenty minutes early. By the time it was one thirty, I had already put on my jacket and shoes, and was ready to leave, yet my brother was still slowly moving at his own pace. I told him to hurry up, but he had to go to the bathroom, and then he had to unlace his shoes to put them on, and then he couldn't find his gloves, so he went back into the house to look for them. I was standing outside the front door, already impatient. I was yelling at my brother to hurry or else we'll be late, but he didn't seem to be in much of a hurry. After quite a while, he finally was ready to go, and by then there were only fifteen minutes until the start of the movie. We ran towards the movie theater together, however, we were still late and missed the beginning. What's worse was that by the time we arrived, everyone was already seated and the movie was playing, so people glared at us for blocking their views as we went to find out seats. I was extremely mad at my brother, and from then on, I made sure to make him leave super early so that we could be on time.

7. Describe an interesting conversation

You should say:

Who you had it with
Where it happened
What the conversation was
And explain why the conversation was interesting

Sample answer:

I once had a really interesting conversation with one of my English teachers. This conversation happened after my high school graduation when I dropped by my high school to chat with teachers and to grab some things that I left behind.

I was in his office when he asked me what were my plans for the summer and for college. I told him that I didn't really know, but I was taking the time to figure out what to do with my life by trying new things and reading about different subjects. My English teacher then proceeded to tell me about his college years and what he did afterward to give me some inspiration. He talked about how he got interested in Buddhism after he graduated high school, so he read a lot of books about the subject and practiced meditation at a conservatory near his house. He also knew that I was really into punk rock music, and during our conversation, he managed to connect the two, punk rock and Buddhism. He said that there were lots of similarities in the ideas behind them, and he gave some amazing metaphors about the similarities between Zen and the spirit of rock music. To me, the conversation was really enjoyable and fun, yet also enlightening and inspiring. It has gotten me interested in Buddhism and the entire subject of philosophy, and it's still a conversation that I think back and recall once in a while.

8. Describe a time when you made a promise to someone

You should say:

To whom you made the promise

Why you made the promise

What the promise is

And explain is it easy or difficult to achieve

Sample answer:

When I was little, I once made a promise to my mom to stop reading in bed at night under the covers. Back then, I was probably in fourth or fifth grade, and I loved reading fantasy novels. I would spend every minute of my spare time reading, and even at night, I continued to read with a flashlight under the covers. My mom soon found that I was always tired and sleepy during the daytime, and she later found out that I was sneakily reading at night. She was really mad at me because she thought that it was bad for my health, and so she made me promise her to never do it again. In return, she said that I could have whatever books I wanted for Christmas and my birthday, so, naturally, I agreed.

It was not an easy promise because sometimes I would get so mesmerized by a story that I just couldn't put it down. But I found a way to work with the promise. I started reading faster, and sometimes I would get up really early at four or five o'clock to read during the mornings. Although there were probably one or two times where I broke the promise to read for just a while, luckily, my mom didn't find out, and later, for Christmas and my birthday, I still got the books my mom promised me.

9. Describe a toy you liked in your childhood

You should say:

What kind of toy it is

When you received it

How you played it

And how you felt about it

Sample answer:

When I was about five years old, my favorite toy was a mini piano. It cost my father like 50 yuan which was a lot of money at that time. At first, my dad refused to buy it for me, but I really insisted on having one and I cried loudly in the mall as a little girl usually does. Finally, my father felt embarrassed, and he bought it for me after I promised that I would cherish it a lot. I was well chuffed.

That was a long time ago, but I still remember that it extremely resembled the real piano, but in a really small size which was suitable for kids. I could play some music with it. Actually, at the time, I didn't know anything about stave, and I just tried to remember it as the same way to remember numbers. Often, I played it with my sisters, and sometimes we fought over the toy. Whatever, that was a lot of fun.

I think playing instruments related toys can help kids to be into music. Maybe some of them could learn some instruments and finally achieve something like becoming musicians. Compared with activities like playing cellphone or computer games which are easily addictive, such toys can be a better choice. And playing with others could be a great opportunity to learn socializing and sharing with people, which are of significance for kids; especially for most Chinese kids because they are the only child in their families.

10. Describe a computer/ phone game you enjoy playing since your childhood

You should say:

What it is

What it is like

How you play it

And why you enjoy playing it

Sample answer:

When I was little, there wasn't a great variety of computer games available. I didn't own a computer or phone, and I had to share the family computer with the rest of my family. There is this one game that's preinstalled on every computer with a Windows system that I enjoyed since I was a kid. That game is Minesweeper.

It's a relatively simple game; there's a grid with lots of boxes that might have mines behind them, and the objective is to clear the grid of all the boxes that are not mines. The only clues the player gets are numbers that show how many mines are in the neighboring squares for every square. When I was little, I thought that it was a pure game of luck, so I would click away at the screen, hoping to win by chance. Later on, as I learned how to play the game, I was able to clear bigger and bigger grids with more and more mines. I enjoyed playing it because as long as you were careful and smart, you could win just based on logical reasoning. At the same time, it was exciting to hold your breath and click at an unknown box, hoping that it wasn't a mine or else the game would end. I would sometimes play with friends, taking turns to click at the boxes, and whoever ended the game would be the loser. At a time where there weren't many forms of entertainment available, Minesweeper was the game that occupied many afternoons of my childhood.

Today, I still enjoy playing Minesweeper when I'm bored and am looking for a mental challenge. I play against myself and try to complete a game in the least amount of time possible. To me, Minesweeper is one of those classic games that will stand the test of time.

Part 3

1. Describe a time when your computer had a problem

1) Why people are addicted to computer?

Sample answer:

There are so many things that a computer can do, people hardly ever need to turn to other devices. Aside from being used for productivity, computers are also great sources of entertainment, allowing people to go online, play video games, watch movies, and more. There is endless content on the internet, and people can browse forever looking for articles, videos, and other things they are fascinated with.

Chinese traditional culture told us to be implicative, so we did. But now Chinese education encourages students to be more independent and inner-directed. So, compared with the old generation, young people in China today are more expressive.

2) Who do you think talks more? Children or grown-ups?

Sample answer:

Kids are more talkative I think. They always ask questions and are curious about everything they see. If you have a child beside you, you will find him humming, the world is noisy.

3) What is the difference between males and females in terms of expressing their feelings?

Sample answer:

3. Describe a time when you ate something for the first time

1) What kinds of foreign food are popular in your country?

Sample answer:

I think that in China, there are popular foreign foods from all over the world. For example, for Asian countries, Japanese, Korean, and Indian cuisines are quite popular, and lots of Chinese people enjoy sushi, kimchi, and curry. As for Western countries, I would American fast food is the first to come to mind including stuff like hamburgers and pie.

2) What are young people's opinions on new food? How about old people?

Sample answer:

I feel that young people are more open to new experiences and trying out new food because they grew up while the world was becoming globalized, which means they've had exposure to different foods of different cultures when they were still young. Old people, since they probably have eaten mainly local, traditional food their whole lives, might not be used to new tastes.

3) Should teachers and parents teach children how to cook?

Sample answer:

I think they should. Not only is it an essential life skill, but cooking is also something that can bridge cultures and spread joy. Every different culture has different foods that are special to the culture, and learning to cook is a way to continue cultural traditions while making something tasty to eat.

4) Why do people like their local food?

Sample answer:

I think the reason people like their local food is that they've eaten it ever since they were born, meaning that their taste buds have gotten used to the taste. Even when people move to different cultures with different food, whenever they eat their local food, it will bring back memories of their hometown, of their childhood, or of their local culture.

4. Describe a kind of bag you want to own

1) Why do women like buying bags?

Some bags may be more formal and suited for the workplace, whereas others may be more playful and may make a good accompaniment to an outfit for partying or going out.

2) Is back-bag useful in life?

Sample answer:

Yes, it is very useful, because we can store lots of things in a backpack, making it the ideal bag for outdoor sports and travelling. What's more, the backpack allows people to carry the weight on their backs, leaving both of their hands free. I would say that it's probably the most convenient bag.

3) Why some people like buying expensive bags?

Sample answer:

Some people buy expensive designer bags to show off their status and wealth, in an attempt to satisfy their egos. There are also others who like to collect expensive designer bags that are limited-edition, and then trade or sell them. New designs of bags come out every season, so people will continuously be wanting to buy more.

4) In the future, what changes will the bag have?

Sample answer:

There's a current popular trend of "wearable-tech" gadgets, where technology is combined with everyday objects to provide more functions to assist with our daily lives.

Some examples of this include smart watches that can monitor people's health and glasses that aid with driving and navigation. I think this trend will apply to bags as well, and in the future, there may be new bags that might contain portable batteries or solar panels, to give an example.

5. Describe a time you needed to use your imagination

1) Is imagination important for children?

Sample Answer:

Yes, it is. Imagination leads to creativity, and it helps us solve problems. If parents do not nurture children's creativity and just let them watch TV all day, children tend to be less inventive and unable to come up with new ideas.

2) When do children need imagination?

Sample Answer:

I think imagination can help children better understand the world around them. Children, at their young age, are beginning to perceive and understand the world, and imagination can help them do so. For example, some kids like to play dress-up and pretend to be cooking or teaching, and creating these made-up scenarios in their head can help with their critical thinking skills and understanding of different roles.

3) What kind of occupations need imagination?

Sample Answer:

I would say many professions need imagination. Imagination can be used to create art, to solve problems, and do much more. Aside from typical creative professions like being an artist, scientists, teachers, and even politicians need imagination to come up with inventive new ways to solve problems.

4) Do scientists need imagination?

Sample Answer:

Yes, they do. Imagination is used to come up with creative solutions to many scientific problems and it can also be used to come up with new theories to be tested when facing the unknown, as is commonly found in the work of scientists working with theory. For example, the Big Bang Theory that describes the origin of the universe started as an idea from some scientist's imagination, and only after the idea is formed, can it be tested in real life using observational equipment.

5) Do the employees in a company need imagination?

Sample Answer:

I believe they do. The imagination they need might be different from the imagination used by artists and writers, but still, nonetheless, imagination can assist them to be more productive and creative. Companies value innovation and the ability to "think-outside-of-the-box", both of which need plenty of imagination.

6. Describe an occasion when you waited for something or someone for a long time

1) How do you manage time?

Sample Answer:

I manage time by wearing a watch and constantly glancing at it to keep track of the time. What I find to be really helpful when I need to focus on a project is to set a timer for myself. For example, if I have an assignment that I estimate to need around two hours, I'll set a timer on my watch for two hours. This way, with a time limit, I tend to procrastinate less and focus more on what I'm doing.

7. Describe an interesting conversation

1) What do young people have conversation about?

Sample answer:

Young people talk about everything ranging from current events to everyday gossip. Some really interesting conversations I've had with my friends covered broad topics including art, politics, philosophy, literature, and random stories that we've seen on social media. Other people like to talk about music, the newest breakthroughs in technology, and gossip about celebrities.

2) Do people have conversation more or less than they did in the past?

Sample answer:

Contrary to what many people may believe, I think that in this era of technology, people talk more than they did before. Even though there might be fewer face-to-face conversations, people now have more convenient ways of conversing through social media or even email.

3) Do you think in the job we need a good conversation?

Sample answer:

I think we do. In the workplace, people still rely on communication and good relationships to get work done. Even though lots of things can be replaced by technology nowadays, I don't think that it can replace human interaction. Good conversations are still key to building better trust and connections between people, and is definitely needed in the workplace.

8. Describe a time when you made a promise to someone

1) Generally speaking, whether parents in China make promises to their children?

Sample answer:

I would say that parents do sometimes make promises to children in China. I think most often it is a promise of some sort of reward for doing something good, such as getting a good grade or a good rank in school.

2) Do children make promises to their parents?

Sample answer:

Children do make promises to parents, but usually, it's at the request of the parents. For example, some parents might make kids promise to never smoke cigarettes or to clean their room every week. I personally don't think that it's a very effective method because the promise isn't initiated by the child, rather, they just reluctantly agree to what their parents want.

3) Do most people keep their promise?

Sample answer:

Yeah, I think most people keep their promises, or at least, they try to. Otherwise, there would be no trust between people and society would be a dangerous and unfriendly place to live in.

9. Describe a toy you liked in your childhood

1) How do advertisements influence children?

Sample answer:

Advertisements are more and more appealing nowadays and children are likely to be attracted by the intriguing advertisements. Obviously, the advertisements have become a part of our life. When we see the advertisements, we will be attracted by them and have the strong desire to buy the products. Especially for the children, they are more easily attracted by the toys ads.

2) Should advertising aimed at kids be prohibited?

Sample answer:

I don't think so. Advertising may be misleading sometimes but it offers kids more choices in purchasing toys and foods. Also, kids and their parents can learn about products without going to a shopping mall which brings them a lot of convenience.

3) Do you think parents should buy more toys for their kids or spend more time with them?

Sample answer:

Compared with buying more toys, I think spending more quality time with them is more important. Parents are always working hard to earn money and can't spare much time to accompany their children. However, companion is fundamental for children's growth. After all, moral encouragement is always more precious than material things.

4) What's the difference between the toys kids play now and those they played in the past?

Sample answer:

Well, compared with the toys kids played in the past, toys for children nowadays tend to intelligence development and hands-on ability of children. What's more, the types are also more diverse. In the past, toys were quite simple and limited. Nowadays, big toy stores like Hamleys are everywhere.

10. Describe a computer/ phone game you enjoy playing since your childhood

1) Why do more and more young people like playing electronic games?

Sample answer:

Young people are always busy with work or with school, so they need a way to relax and they turn to video games. Most people have smartphones and access to the internet to play video games, and playing games together with friends is a lot more fun. There's a large variety of games to choose from, so people are sure to find games that suit their interests.

2) What will happen if teenagers spend too much time playing computer games?

Sample answer:

When teenagers spend too much time on computer games, they neglect their other duties like schoolwork. I have heard stories about kids who were addicted to video games and even skipped school to play games. They failed all their classes and had to repeat a grade.

3) Should parents and teachers prevent children from playing games?

Sample answer:

I don't think that parents and teachers should entirely prevent children from playing computer games, but I do think that they should set a limit for the time allowed to play games. Some kids might use video games to relax, but I am sure that many kids have gotten carried away and played video games all day and night without doing any school work at all.

4) What are the benefits of playing electronic games?

Sample answer:

I remember I once read somewhere that playing video games can improve people's reflex and reaction speeds, especially if they play games that require split-second decision making or fast controls. I think this could be a benefit for people playing sports. Video games are also good for taking people's minds off work and relaxing.
